Who can seek help for Counselling?

- All students and staff of PICT.

Who can be contacted on campus?

- The campus has a Counsellor who will be responsible for coordinating all counselling services. The students/staff may contact the counsellor directly and seek appointment.

- In the beginning of each academic year an orientation will be conducted about Counselling. The telephone number of the Counsellor is provided to the students availing of this service to contact in case of emergency.

How do one contact Counsellor?

Procedures:

- Students/staff can approach the counsellor directly and register to avail facilities offered.

- Students can also be referred to the centre by parents, faculty or peers. The counsellor can then take up the case.

- The student and the counsellor will initially discuss the general and specific concern areas outlined by the student.

Documents maintained by the Counsellor:

- All documentation linked to counselling- brief case histories, progress chart, etc.
Confidentiality policies:

- The policy of the Counselling Cell is to maintain the confidentiality of interaction, information of the client and also to follow the ethical principles of counselling professionals.
- The counsellor will not speak with parents, teachers, friends, or anyone else about their concerns without the permission of the respective student.
- There are very rare exceptions - in situations involving danger to life (e.g., suicidal tendencies in a student); safety issues of the student (e.g., Sexual abuse) or situations involving legal procedures (e.g., court orders).
- It often happens, though, that problems can be solved more effectively if the family and peers are involved. Many students find it very helpful for their counsellor to speak with a parent, a faculty member or even a friend. In such a situation the counsellor may, with the permission of the student, involve any one or all of them. This would be decided on individual case requirements with the comfort of the student getting the highest priority.
- The documents that counsellors have, such as case histories will also be maintained confidentially.

Assessment policies:

- At times, the counsellor may be required to administer certain psychometric tests. These tests can be done to understand the concerns of the students in a clearer way. The assessments can even be psycho-educational in nature.

Referral policies:

- Adjustment issues cause psychological distress like low confidence, self esteem issues, inferiority complex, communication issues, loneliness, adjustment to new environment. In case of language adjustment issue, cases will be referred to Head of Department or respective Mentors for conducting workshops to assist students.
• Physiological deficiencies like B12, D3, Iron, Haemoglobin cause low mood, fatigue, concentration issues, emotional outbreaks. Counsellor will refer student for Blood check-up outside the campus. To be followed up with their Physician.

• In case the student is required to undergo the tests or procedures for example: formal psychological, psychiatric, or neurological evaluations; intensive or extensive outpatient psychotherapy; specialized treatment programs such as for alcohol or drug treatment or eating disorders etc. may be referred to the concerned expert/facility.
